MARC (Arts & Rec Center) 4

111 E. 100 N. St. • 435.259.6272

This month, the MARC is showcasing art by two local artists, Makeda Barkley and Scott Brunmeier. Moab-based artist, Makeda Barkley, started working in mixed-media, combining spray paints, oil painting, block printing and ink drawings in 2020-2021 during the COVID-19 pandemic. Formerly an oil painter focused on portraiture, Makeda took a few years off from painting and this will be her first show following her break from art-making. Combining several of her favorite media emerged from a desire to make more engaging works--both for the audience and for herself, and her paintings showcase this journey. The exploration of mixed media and a divergence from the traditional portrait provides for a more light-hearted art-making process, and has resulted in a playful body of work.

Scott is currently focusing on how light and shadow create the darndest shapes. He explores this juxtaposition through painting landscapes in oil. He hopes one day to paint honestly.

Moab Museum 1

118 E. Center St. • 435.259.7985

For the May Art Walk, the Museum is excited to present the work of the Delicate Stitches Quilt Guild. Their annual themed challenge is entitled "The Straight Skinny," and features thirteen 12" by 24" quilts created by guild members. Founded in 1998, the Delicate Stitches foster and celebrate the art of quilting, and have exhibited their work annually at the Moab Museum for twenty years now. The May Art Walk will be the grand opening of the quilt exhibit, which will be on temporary display at the Museum afterwards.

The Delicate Stitches typically meet at the Grand Center on the second Tuesday of each month, but with COVID-19 restrictions, have met via Zoom. They will start meeting at Rotary Park beginning with the April meeting. Membership is free this year, and they encourage anyone who is interested in quilting to join!
